

Insurance Coverage for British Columbians

Your Registered Massage Therapist is a recognized health care profession in British Columbia by:

Extended Health Care Group Benefit Plans

Most British Columbians have extended health benefits through a workplace group insurance plan. Coverage varies, often with an annual ceiling amount. Sometimes a physician's referral is required for reimbursement of claims. Check with your plan.

Medical Services Plan

British Columbians on premium assistance (low income) can claim part of their visit to a Registered Massage Therapist through their British Columbia Medical Services Plan (MSP). MSP will contribute up to $23 per visit for up to ten (10) total visits to supplementary health care providers per year. Patients may be required to supplement the cost of the RMT visit.

WorkSafeBC

WorkSafeBC covers injured workers for their visits to a Registered Massage Therapist. An injured worker must inform the Registered Massage Therapist (RMT) if the visit is due to a workplace injury. Not all RMTs accept injured workers claims.

ICBC

British Columbians injured in automobile accidents do have ICBC insurance. Check with your ICBC adjuster regarding registered massage therapy coverage.

Veterans Affairs (DVA)

Canada's Veterans are covered for treatment through the Department of Veterans Affairs. Check with your DVA adjudicator regarding registered massage therapy coverage.

RCMP

RCMP members are covered for massage therapy treatments through Blue Cross.
